

Information Technologies & International Development

Leading journal in ICTD

Started in 2003

Published quarterly

Edited and produced by Georgia Tech

Includes articles, reports, notes, forums and book reviews

ITID is an interdisciplinary open-access journal that focuses on the intersection of information and communication technologies (ICTs) with the "other four billion".

ITID

- Dimensions and Results
 - Value / Question split (13/10 articles)
 - Development defined as economic, followed by health and education (13, 3, 3)
 - The West studying SE Asia, but with trends towards diversity (4 articles contributed by Sri Lanka)
 - Mobile systems the most often studied
 - Mobile studies were more actionable than web studies
 - Studies performed by authors of the same country being studies allowed for collection of larger datasets
 - One third of the articles examined issues of gender